From a Grateful King

Proclamation

The women in my life don't Fear the burning fire; they become it and rise. They will never run away from danger to save their lives. Instead, they will run toward it and be one with it. These women have come together to fight the fire that took many lives on Maui Island that displaced families by rallying together and organizing plane loads of much-needed supplies without rest to care for the basic needs of all those impacted by this devastation. The names listed below are those that took their credit cards out, opened their pocketbooks, and took money out from their private bank accounts to buy and send much-needed supplies because they care and want us, the Hawaiians, and iwi kanaka of the aina to know they stand in solidarity with us during our crisis.

Nou ke Akua Ke Aupuni O Hawai'i

I want to especially acknowledge our beloved Kupuna – Victoria Kaluna Palafox, of Maui Island, who said 'yes' to my call to duty. Last night I appointed her as my Ambassador of Goodwill and Aloha for all of Maui Island. She is charged with seeing the needs of the people and reporting those needs to our First Responders so those needs can be met with love and aloha. No task is too small or large to overcome – we will overcome those challenges together – IMUA. With love and gratitude, HRM Keli'i
